President of Society Outlines Methods of Procedure at Past Meetings

A MEETING of the Students' Society has been called for on Monday, February 21st, in the McGill Union at 5 o'clock upon the request of 25 students. The request is as follows:

"We, the undersigned, being members of the Students' Society of McGill University, do request Mr. E. F. Crutchlow, the president of the Students' Society of McGill University, to call a meeting of said Society within three days of receipt of this request.

The purpose of this meeting shall be to obtain an expression of the feelings of the Society in regard to the Padlock Law, and to form a committee to approach the University authorities concerning the organization of opposition to the law.

QUORUM 100 STUDENTS.

The last meeting of the Student Society was held on March 16, 1936, to discuss the increase of fees. A meeting was called on March 15, 1937, but was not held because only 80 students attended. The quorum for the meetings is 100.

All students who pay the universal fees of the University are members of the Student Society and these may all attend this meeting, which will be held in the Union Ballroom.

The procedure at the Students Society meetings follows Parliamentary procedure, and the method is as follows: reading of the minutes, business arising from the minutes, communications, business of executive, reports of committees, new business, notice of motions, and general business.

S.P.C. STATEMENT.
The following statement, issued by Reginald Louthood, president of the Social Problems Club, and David Fisher, secretary, was made before the committee.

HISTORICAL CLUB GOES HYSTERICAL

THE annual Hysterical Night of the R.V.C. Historical Club was held last night at the home of Helen McMaster, Nancy Griffin, Secretary, presided over the meeting.

Two charades were presented by second year, entitled "Pocahontas" or "Hokus-Pokus," and "Eggs-Laid in a Chappelle." Mary Hudson, Betty Stanton and Frances Maxwell were counterfoils for one another in the roles of the three heroines.

Fourth year enacted "Caesar's Evasion of Britain," and rolling pin figured among the stage properties as the Romans overcame the Britons, or, in the words of the skit, as the Britons "vidi, vidi, veni, veni, vici, vici, vici, vici."

The business meeting closed with a summary or "Brief Survey of History" by Third Year's sole representative, Dorothy McCaig.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB TO HEAR 'NATIONALITY'
TALK

LADY Zimmern, of the Geneva School of International Studies, will speak to the Cosmopolitan Club and all others interested at Strathcona Hall, in the Conference Room, next Monday at 8.20 p.m. She has chosen for her topic, "Nationality."

Lady Zimmern has had considerable to do with the Geneva School of International Studies, a summer school for university students from all parts of the world. She has made numerous visits to the United States, where she has spoken to various women's colleges.

Are International Debates Worthwhile?

WE take great pleasure in extending a hearty welcome to Messrs. Carl Diesenroth and Gerald Marcus, visiting debaters from Stanford, who held verbal combat with McGill last night on the vexed question of the C.I.O.

We cannot help feeling, however, that our welcome would have rung with a less hollow echo had it been endorsed by a larger audience in the Union Ballroom last night.

Time and again debating teams arrive, from the States, from England, from Down Under. Time and again they speak to nearly empty houses, despite considerable advance publicity on the part of the Debating Union.

It is all very well for us to mouth trite truisms about the beneficial effects of such visits: of the promotion of international understanding by the exchange of ideas between men of great universities and by the intelligent discussion of important current problems of mutual interest.

There is no real reason why these effects should not result from such visits. The debaters are usually men of marked ability and to a large extent typical of the university from which they come. Surely there is no dearth of men of equal calibre at McGill. Yet exchange of ideas is never actually realized, the debaters see very little of the real McGill, and (through no fault of their own or of the Debating Union Executive) depart little wiser than they came.

There are ways of stimulating interest in international debates. We could suggest that the Debating Union arrange for a visiting team from Vassar or Wellesley. We fear, however, that the interest, though it would doubtless be considerable, would hardly be purely academic.

Until at least an apologetic pretence at intellectual interest in international debates can be simulated, it seems hardly worthwhile to expose ourselves so nakedly to representatives of other universities. Under such conditions, it seems to us, international debates are emphatically not worthwhile.

MUSIC

Rossini's Barber.

1816—Fidelio written, performed and popular, Der Freischütz about to be born. It was a question how long the old Italian musical comedy could withstand the romantic tide. Mozart had already revitalized it once, but in the meantime revolution from France had spelled death to all that was Roccoco. Of scores of operas from the old Italian period, none has compared in survival value with the Barber of Seville.

Neither Beaumarchais nor Rossini were dealers in profound emotions. Courtships are born and closed within the hour; rivals are tricked and look silly, without discursive ethical digressions. Devotion and loyalty tend to vary with the fatness of a purse, or with the promise of some merry sport. Characters are crystalline and tangible, pranks are loveable and comic, music means melody, fresh and clear.

We do not despise the power and turmoil which the turn of the century released. We appreciate Beethoven's jest, at the close of the Allegretto in the Eighth Symphony, when with a shriek of scornful mirth he murders his own little movement by appending the Rossini tonic-and-dominant finish. Infected by a new individualism, Beethoven hated easy conventions. But we are far enough away in time to evaluate the culture which made the Barber possible. Evaluate means assess, not praise or blame. We must put romanticism in its proper place, as a functional outgrowth of repression-bound society, if we are not to miss the pathos in that precarious sophistication of the eighteenth century, which counted polished gaiety as its happiest release. The Italian Rossini, like the German Haydn, fed this great demand. In Mozart this gaiety often falters. In Beethoven the break is quite complete. How fiercely different is the latter's humour; how conspicuously absent is Wagner's. We too, often must feel that we are riding a storm, as the common man of 1800 must have felt. So we are free to speculate on why the Barber is so popular today. The demand is still there.

The performance of the Columbia Opera Company was quite good enough to preserve the charm of both words and music. The orchestra was good. Fine acting and reliable singing by Luisa Coronina and Messrs. Chigi, Palermo, Harris, Whitfield, and sound direction by Umberto Magnai offset the customary touring troupe scenery. The remaining performances of La Traviata tonight, Martha and Faust tomorrow, and finally The Pearl Fishers, will conclude a week's bill. We hope that good houses like Wednesday's will be repeated often enough to persuade this company to return.

Is Opera Dying?

In our opinion, opera as an entertainment form is really only beginning to touch the mass of North Americans. We are poorly educated in vocal music, however good a beginning we have made in instrumental. But after all, song is so fundamental, and the voice is the natural medium for human dramatic expression. We feel pleased with ourselves to have heard the Barber once this season. Yet for all that we hear about the grim effect of Germanized culture in Hitler's country, the Barber was performed in Germany last winter 314 times. Verdi operas totalled 1,351 performances, and Puccini 1,186. Even Wagner totalled a mere 1,409 stagings on his home ground. In all 236 different complete operas crossed German footlights last season. This is official. Think it over. —F.N.G.

Military Matters

A Career In The Canadian Permanent For University Graduates.

TO be eligible for consideration on submission of an application for a commission as Lieutenant in the Canadian Permanent Militia, the candidate must be a British Subject and physically fit. He must also be between the ages of 18 and 25 and single.

In the specialized branches of the Service such as the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, the Royal Canadian Engineers, the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, the Royal Canadian Army Veterinary Corps, etc., the corresponding degrees in applied science, engineering, medicine and so on are required. Also the applicant must be from a university where a military curriculum is laid down, for instance McGill, where the C.O.T.C. provides training in nearly all branches of the Army.

The candidates who are not also graduates of the Royal Military College undergo a long period of training if and when they are accepted.

On being granted a commission, the officer enjoys the very best social life. Whenever there is anything interesting going on, the military man is sure to be there.

The work is interesting and healthy, a large part of it being in the open air. An officer has a good chance of being moved around the Country, stationed at various points for different tasks. Some go to England for the Staff Courses at Camberley and some to the Staff College at Quetta, India. Besides this, a few exchanges are made between England and India and Canada.

There is not the big money in the army.

that a man might find on St. James St., but the job is secure if the man lives up to the high standards of character, ability and industry required by the Permanent Force. Even during the hard times a soldier is paid three hundred and sixty-five days in the year.

The life of an officer may be in many ways hard, but it is usually keen, clean and happy. In fact, the life of an Officer in His Majesty's Army is that of a Gentleman.

C.O.T.C. Activities.

On Tuesday evening the Certificate 'A' (Lieutenant) Candidates in Infantry underwent part of their practical examination under Major Campbell and Lieut. Ritchie of 'D' Company, The Royal Canadian Regiment. Last evening they had a class written test.

The Certificate 'B' (Captain) Candidates continued their series of tactical schemes on the map under Major Corrigan on Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

The Recruits received a lecture on the parts of the rifle on Tuesday evening from Sergeant-Major-Instructor Brown of the R.C.R.

Written examinations in all branches of the Certificates 'B' and 'A' will be held in the afternoon and evening of March 8.

The Ski-Platoon.

The Ski-Platoon ran off trials last Sunday morning between Ste. Marguerite and Ste. Adele for the teams to be entered in the 'Hill 70' Military Trophy Ski Race to be held this Sunday. Three teams, under Lieut. R. P. Rothschild, 2nd Lieut. A. Mendelsohn and 2nd Lieut. R. L. McGibbon, and possibly a fourth will be entered.

On Sunday afternoon the platoon broke up into squads and trained in the tactical use of the map and the compass.

So wonderful to see,
I gasped, and fell upon the ground,
In simple reverie.

It was a little wildwood rose,
Its face a blushing red,
I felt an urge to have that flower;
Triumph of words unsaid.

It looked so sweet and innocent,
A thing of rarity,
I just put it into my heart,
Forever mine, you see. . . .

—THE DAILY TEXAN.

What Is a Gentleman?

What is the definition of a gentleman? Everyone seems to have his own particular idea varying from those in Arts who have visions of white tie and tails to those in Engineering who think in terms of series of emptied steins. The London Daily Mail had a competition for the best 25-word definition of "what is a gentleman?" Here are some of the better answers:

A man who never offends anyone by his actions, his speech, his manner or his dress.
A gentleman is a male whom men despise, women love and adore—even after ten years' matrimony.

A wife's first husband was a gentleman.
A gentleman is one who does not kiss a girl with his hat on.
A gentleman earns the respect of men, deserves the trust of women, and inspires love in children.

A person who, when he speaks to a woman, makes her feel she is a lady.
But the best crack of all was the person who answered the question by asking the question: "There must be gentlemen; otherwise, what is the use of blondes?"

To which we ask "Is there such a thing as a blonde any more?"
"A gentleman is one who is never unconsciously rude."

Strathcona Hall Library

BREAD AND WINE, By Ignazio Silone. New York, 1937.

AT the present time when, even in Canada, the subject of Communism and Fascism is filling the newspapers and our everyday conversation, a Socialist's account of life in Fascist Italy—just prior to and during the Abyssinian War—is bound to be interesting and instructive.

To many people, the pleasure of reading a remarkably well-written book will be spoiled by an utter lack of reticence. The behaviour of the minor characters in the book, too personal to be freely spoken of in company, sometimes vulgar, sometimes licentious, is likely to disgust a reader accustomed to more reserved English books. But Silone evidently wishes to convey a true picture of life in Italy, both urban and rural, and he undoubtedly gives one the impression that he is faithfully describing what he has seen.

The story is of one Spino, an exiled Socialist, who returns disguised and with a false passport to try to get in touch with his old associates and keep alive the spirit of a counter-revolution, but to many readers the real hero is the old priest, Benedetto, living in retirement because his views are not in favour with the authorities, and dying in the act of doing what he feels to be his duty as a simple priest.—R.C.

Correspondence

The Editor, McGill Daily:

Dear Sir—Tim Buck, secretary of the Communist Party in Canada has been denied the right to speak at McGill University by the decision of the Students' Executive Council. His appearance here was scheduled as one of many political addresses by various party spokesmen under the auspices of the Social Problems Club. Just recently Adrian Arcand, Fascist leader in Canada, availed himself of the privilege to address the students as he had done on other occasions.

By the law of this province, Communism, its ideas, organization and literature are forbidden. This is implemented by the notorious Padlock Law. Technically the law has been challenged by lawyers throughout our country as unconstitutional. Thinking people everywhere have been quick to denounce it as un-British in its character.

The greatest contribution that universities can and must make today, indeed the only attitude which can permit the application of the name university to a group of buildings, is the exchange of thought. In this they must hold themselves, cost what it may, above the law when that law attempts to stifle these things.

The immunity granted a member of the Government on the floor of the House is relatively unimportant contrasted with the liberty of thought that must reign within the walls of universities.

They have a peculiar great right and duty of protecting this liberty which will live when states and their governments have been outgrown by the people. It is fitting to note here that students share this responsibility and privilege with their teachers.

We deplore the action of Students' Executive Council in refusing Tim Buck the opportunity of speaking here. We believe they have thoughtlessly corrupted university's intellectual integrity. A dangerous precedent has been established which will be difficult to eradicate in the future. It is to be hoped that freedom of speech will be reinstated in spite of this mistake.

MEL DOIG,
MEL DAVIDSON.

The Editor of The Daily:

Dear Sir—Freedom to hear many and varied opinions on any subject is essential to the complete education of any future citizen. This freedom, which has been a proud tradition in McGill for many years, is now being seriously threatened. Whether we agree with Tim Buck or not, we should, in all fairness to the student body, allow him to present his views. The official stand of the Students' Council on the question of heritage is understandable and commendable, but must we, as students with a heritage of inviolable rights, submit to an unjust and unconstitutional law? Caution and order are necessary in orderly societies, but complete submission can be overcome. The point has now been reached when action must be taken. We do not, however, advocate such tactics as have been practised by the other university students in this city. Active resistance need not be violent to be effective. Surely some solution can be arrived at which will contravene the decrees of an autocratic government in such a way as to avoid open collision for the moment. For example, would it not be possible for Tim Buck to address the students somewhere on the campus, say the Arts steps, under the protection of bodyguards? After all, they couldn't padlock the campus, or arrest the student body! Our ancestors, in the past, have had to resort to the open time after time to exercise their right of assembly and freedom of speech, and it can conceivably be done again. Whatever may befall, should McGill tamely submit to the forces of an anti-democratic clique of bigoted tyrants, we shall be ashamed to own ourselves as students of a one-time liberal and free institution.

FRANK CAREY,
NORMAN HILLYER,
Arts '40.

The Editor, McGill Daily:

Dear Sir—We notice by Wednesday's Daily that the male ago is running amuck once more. The writer of the editorial, "Compete and Be Feminine," flatters himself by thinking (even for a moment) that we engage in competitive sports with the sole intention of attracting the masculine eye.

It is not with the idea of looking pretty that we play basketball, badminton, tennis or hockey. We play these games sheerly for the enjoyment and exercise.

And does the poor simpleton really think athletic girls don't have good figures?

We realize that the purpose of this editorial was to provoke correspondence to fill the gaps which worry the poor night editors, and we hope that the numerous signatures below will fill plenty of space.

Yours truly,

Souffle a la Hurricane
2 feather dusters, chopped fine
½ cup sawdust
4 doz. eggs, beaten to a fluffy fluff (and stuff!)

Contents of one full ash tray
½ pint of peach fuzz
Mix well in your best hat until you need it. Blow through an electric fan until the novelty wears off. Collect the remains in your vacuum cleaner, garnish liberally with mattress springs and serve on your best rug.

Here's a little something that is easy to hrow up any time and will come as a big surprise to your friends (especially in-laws).

Kill 'er Kure Kassarole
3 picked herring (about 3 sheets in the wind)
2 cups of powdered alum
½ cup of crushed bananas
A sprinkle of Fly-Tox (Quick Henry, the Flit)

Put the pickled herring through the meat chopper. Place in a casserole and toss in the other ingredients from across the room. Bake for three days in a hot oven (this is nice for those hot summer daze) and serve in individual moustache cups—if you have a moustache—otherwise, don't serve at all.

And now for one of those veritable nerve tonics.

Tiredblissman's Salad
4 sticks of dynamite (this is a nice substitute for celery)
½ lb. of ground glass
A few bad tomatoes (the badder the better)
Mix together with a canoe paddle. Serve on a nice crisp cactus leaf. Garnish with Paris Green and light the dynamite as you serve (for effectiveness). This salad is somewhat improved (if possible) by using Russian Oil Dressing.

Ah! Alors, the piece de resistance—Sauerkraut Sundae with butter-scotch sauce.

Redmen and U. of M. In Crucial Fixture

Team Favourites to Put Strangle-hold on Title With Win Tonight

MEET TORONTO FEB. 28

McGill's big Red hockey machine swings back into action tonight when the boys clash with Tony Baril's proteges from the University of Montreal at the Forum. The game might well be called a crucial one for the Redmen; a loss will seriously jeopardize their chances of retaining their title as league champs, and they may be pressed by the fast-skating Frenchmen who have everything to win and nothing to lose.

The loss of Tim Dunn and John Palmer has been keenly felt by the Redmen. Brands has been doing well at filling in a tough assignment, but lack of experience has naturally handicapped him. If the Redmen could have taken the game at Queen's last week-end, they would have had far less to worry about today; the Tricolour squad was a far superior team to the one that absorbed a 10-1 shellacking here two weeks ago, and vastly superior to any squad that has worn the Queen's colours for a good many years. As it is, however, the Redmen will be flying tonight to redeem themselves, and to insure their choice as favourites to retain the title. One week from Monday, they meet Toronto's Blue-boys here at the Forum in their last regular game of the season. They took the Varsity team last week-end, and so should anticipate little trouble in repeating on their home ice.

McGill will start the same squad that travelled to Kingston and Toronto last week, with Tennant in the nets, Dickson, Anton and Brands on the defence, Crutchfield, Pidcock and McConnell on the first forward line, and Walker, Perowne and O'Brien on the much-criticized second line. Perhaps a little too much has been said about the technical faults of these boys, and not enough about their merits. All are hard-driving players, fast skaters and a little more intent on getting the puck in the opposing nets than in paying too much attention to just how it gets there. But they are bound to hit their stride as a unit line soon, and when they do, will provide plenty of worries for the

WHAT some writers would refer to as a "crucial contest" will take place this evening at the Forum when the Senior hockeyists meet the U. of M. While this is not a home game it would help the boys a lot if a good crowd turned out to take in the contest. By all the laws the Red team should win, but the Frenchmen have nothing to lose and the McGill men have a title at stake, so anything may happen.

TWO Intermediate teams have been going on their way winning steadily and little has been said about it and still less interest taken in it by the students. We are referring to the hockey and basketball squads. The former, while they failed to burn up the ice in the city league, have yet to meet defeat in the college, while the basketball team, after a rather unsteady start, have hit a real clip and at present are in second place in the league standing.

THROUGH the medium of the local press we read that the Queen's football machine is likely to receive an addition from the West in the person of one Joe Turner. Joe is quite a star half and will undoubtedly help to keep the Tricolour right in there. There is also the ghost of a rumour going around that Johnny Ferraro would "like" to enter Medicine at Queen's—Johnny also plays football and basketball.

DARTMOUTH seem to be going to town in the American section of the college hockey, completely usurping the position formerly held by Harvard. The green clad boys have been undefeated by American teams in their last fourteen games, exhibition and otherwise.

THE Toronto hockey team seem to have their graduation worries just as we do. Strangely enough the Tricolour squad are not affected this way. Up at Toronto their three defencemen, Charles, Rey and Driscoll, all are with their team for the last year. All the forwards, four of whom are playing with the team for their first season, will be back; also the goalies.

SOMETHING different, and definitely interesting, will take place Tuesday night on the Campus rink when the Co-eds will meet the Engineers at hockey. Dave Tennant will be in the nets for the Co-eds and some sweet young thing will back up the Engineers; they'll probably need it. After the brawl, the mob, those who have tickets, will trek over to the Union Grill and get what they can to eat, etc.

BOTH CAGE SQUADS SWING INTO ACTION PLAYING NEXT WEEK

Intermediates Aim to Chalk Up Another Win Meeting Montreal West

SENIORS AWAIT WESTERN

Intermediate Squad Has Yet to Be Beaten, Showing Fine Record

BOTH of McGill's cage teams will be practising tonight, sharpening up their sights for action next week. Current interest swings around the Intermediates, but eyes are also being directed toward the invasion of Western next Friday, when the Mustangs clash the Senior Reds.

The Intermediates will be gunning for their fifth straight win when they meet Montreal West on Monday night. The boys have been rolling right along this season, and have compiled a record at which any team could look with pride. Earlier in the season they handed U. of M. a beating to the tune of 37-23; not long afterward they took Queen's Grads 50-29. The brilliant playing of Sansberg and Orr, and Kalfas' strength on the defence, have contributed to the success of the squad. There are still three games to be played, including the tilt on Monday, and comes the playoffs in which the team is practically assured a berth. The last two games will be with Macdonald College and Amici on February 25 and March 5, respectively.

The Seniors are feeling considerably rejuvenated after the decisive trimming they handed Dominion-Douglas on Wednesday night. Strangely enough, there has been a rather general feeling among the supporters of the squad that something was needed to inject a little enthusiasm into the boys. Rumours of discord within the team haven't made things any easier, but the boys vindicated themselves with a vengeance on Wednesday. If they continue to show that form they should have little difficulty in taking the remainder of the games on their schedule. Tough luck has really dogged the squad, because early in the season they showed good form. Western appear to be the class of the circuit after their win over Toronto last week. They come to town next Friday, and Van Wagner's squad will be working hard next week in an effort to show the sceptics that they have still got a little of the game in their systems. It should be interesting.

FENCING NOTICE.
Fencing classes will end on Friday, February 26th. All fencers who will not require their equipment for Provincial Championships are urgently requested to turn in equipment and locker keys at one of the meetings between now and then, and lighten the duties of their unfortunate manager. It will be much simpler and quicker for the fencers as well as for the manager.

Coed Basketballers Leave for Kingston

With The Co-eds By M. G. E.

Play Toronto Tonight in Bronze Baby Tournament Opener

WESTERN MEET QUEEN'S

DESPITE training rules, the coed basketball team probably didn't get their quota of sleep last night. The girls leave this morning at 9.15 a.m. from Bonaventure, and excitement has been running high for the last twenty-four hours. They held a light practice yesterday afternoon at 5 in the M.H.S. Gym, and everyone was in top shape and hopes were sky high.

McGill girls meet Toronto in their first game this evening in the Kingston Gym. Toronto had a strong team last year, but only four of the team are back and the latest report was that one member of the team has been declared ineligible by a doctor, and Toronto is bringing up one of their intermediates as a sub. Everything seems to be favouring our girls, and there is every expectation that the Bronze Baby will be at McGill for the coming year.

McGILL TEAM STRONG.

If or when McGill wins against Toronto tonight they will meet the winners of the Western-Queen's game on Saturday afternoon for the championship. McGill is sending the best team they have put on the floor in years. The girls have speeded up their passing and their shooting is more accurate. Under the captaincy of Babette Dunham, whose tricky floor work is an outstanding aid to the team, and with the close co-operation of everyone on plays and signals, the team is working smoothly and efficiently.

The opening lineup in their game with Toronto is: Forwards, Eileen Marshall, Emily Irving, Babette Dunham; defence, Margaret Jamieson, Betty Murphy and Phyllis Evans. The team will be accompanied by Miss Slack, coach; Molly Coote, manager, and Mary Richmond, Daily representative. Despite the fact that you may not have many supporters there in the flesh, everyone is rooting for you and will be thinking of you. Don't disappoint us.

Good luck, girls!—in the game we mean. It isn't a case of do or die, but regardless of the outcome,

INTERFACULTY LOOP BEGINS PLAY-OFFS

Comm. 2 and Arts 4 Lead Their Inter-Class Sections

THERE is only one game left to play in the Interfaculty Hockey League—that between Medicine and Law. This game has been postponed several times because of lectures, Med. Balls, etc., but is finally scheduled to be played on Monday 6-7. The winner of this classic will meet Engineering as soon as possible to decide the winner of Section B of the Interfaculty League.

On Tuesday 3.30 to 5 o'clock Arts will meet Theology for the right to meet Dentistry on Thursday 6.00-7.00 to decide the winner of Section A. The winners of these sections will play off the following week.

INTERCLASS.

Commerce 2 and Arts 4 have come out on top in their sections while the winners in the other two divisions have yet to be decided. Eng. 4 play Med 2 to decide the winner of section 3, while the winner of Section 4 will be decided in tonight's game.

In last night's game Commerce 4 defeated Comm. 3, 8-5, and Eng. 1 beat Eng. 3Y, 2-1.

INTERFACULTY PLAY-OFF SCHEDULE.

Mon. Feb. 21—6.00-7.00, Med. vs. Law.

Tues. Feb. 22—3.00-5.00, Arts vs. Theol.

Coed Hockeyists to Meet Bishops Team

Game Will Be Played Tomorrow Night at Coliseum at 7.00 p.m.

LINE-UP ANNOUNCED

HIGHLIGHTING a season of exhibition tilts the Co-ed hockey team will meet the Bishops squad tomorrow night at the Coliseum. The game is scheduled to start at 7.00 and it is expected a large crowd will be on hand. The teams have been meeting each other for several seasons and last year's contest ended in a 2-2 draw.

Though weakened by the absence of a couple of its members who will be up at Kingston with the hoop squad, the girls are expected to show the same smart brand of hockey they displayed last week against Mac. Fifteen cents admission will be charged at the game. A return game will be played at Bishop's on the 26th of February.

George Hornig and Gordie Melkiejohn have consented to act as goal judges. Interviewed last night, Paul Pidcock announced the following line-up. Goal Caroline Granger, Defence, Jean Buchanan and Peggy Lamb, Centre, Betty Gould, right wing Marg Hart and left wing Eleanor Hunter. The alternates will be Barbara Lamb at centre, Eileen Harris at right wing and Phyllis Hall at left wing. The reserves will be Doris Banfill, Betty Prince and Ruby Smith.

The team have been practicing hard all week and their combination in particular has amazed the ring-side observers.

ENGINEERS MEET CO-EDS

By '38.
Flash-Flash-Flash
Lachine, Que., February 17.—A bandy of swarthy athletes arrived here tonight to train in quiet for the big hockey game, easily the classic of the year. The people in question were Engineers, and the game is the tilt between the fair coeds and the Faculty of Engineering. As honorary coach, Dave Tennant, who is playing in the nets for the girls, refused to make any statement on the result, but Athletic Manager Taylor Kennedy, famed for his hockey prowess, claimed that the ladies would tire in the last quarter and the gentlemen (?) would run up a large score.

The coed coach, Paul Pidcock, claims that his team has a surprise for the men, but as Paul plays senior hockey, this sort of statement is the usual thing and not at all to be relied on. The ladies will be playing tomorrow night at the Coliseum and a group of Plumbers will be present to scout their opponents, a low trick, typical of Plumbers.

The game will be played on the Campus rink, at 9.00 p.m., and after the game the players and spectators will entrain for the Union Grill where cocoa and sandwiches will be dished out by the boys. Admission will be fifteen cents, and there will probably also be some informal dancing and other social activities, who knows.

COLLEGE PLAY WILL BE STAGED TONIGHT

"Journey's End" Ready for Presentation After Dress Rehearsal

Tonight a grim story of the war will be unfolded before the students of Macdonald in the form of the play "Journey's End." It is a story of men clinging to their ideas of right and wrong, when all about them is terror and disillusionment. It is a story punctuated by the rumble of cannon, the rattle of machine guns, the flashing of "Verrey" lights.

The leading roles are taken by J. A. Dunn as Captain Stanhope, a young man, hardened and embittered by the war, but carrying with him an invincible courage; S. Clarke as a young officer, fresh from school, full of ideas, and bewildered by the new experiences and emotions which the war is bringing to him; and F. N. Pope, as a former school master, kindly and level headed, cool, and possessing a wealth of knowledge of human nature.

Then we shall see the misery of Hibbert, "a repulsive little worm," played with imagination and efficiency by G. Goss, and the humour of Trotter, a good-natured unimaginative cockney who has risen to his position of second-lieutenant from the ranks, as portrayed by John Bridge.

"Journey's End" is under the competent direction of Mr. J. Nash of Montreal and Producer Goss. Stage setting and sound effects are managed by H. A. Templeton and J. A. Dunn. Laurels for the realism of the dugout go to Pat Bartlett who has worked untiringly at the difficult task of turning paper flats into old board walls.

TEAMS PREPARE FOR KEMPTVILLE GAMES ON SAT. AFTERNOON

The boys who represent Mac in the basketball and hockey wars have decided to forget that fateful week-end which witnessed the successful invasion of those big, bad Engineers and have once more buckled down to regular practice in an effort to smooth out the rough spots.

A good opportunity to redeem themselves will be presented to them tomorrow when Mac is host to Kemptville Agricultural School. The visitors are bringing along a hockey team and a basketball squad with which they threaten to make a clean sweep of the series.

We are told that Shirli Griffin has succumbed to the lure of a uniform and is "soldiering" for Mr. Goss and Co. However, Capt. Griffin has promised to crawl out of his shell-hole in time to lead his basketballers against the enemy. Coach Purdie predicts that when the clouds of battle clear, Mac will be able to hoist the victory flag.

Robert "Bob" MacDuff, on the other hand, believes that his green and gold storm troops will go over the top in their contest. If the weather holds, we are assured of an excellent game.

The visitors will remain over for the hop Saturday night. These hops are beginning to receive their deserved acclaim. Much credit is due to an active dance committee, and to Ross MacAllister and his Music Makers.

It is rumoured, by the way, that there will be a sprinkling of femininity among the Kemptville supporters. This should provide added incentive to the Men of Mac to support either or both athletic contests and, of course, the hop.

GIRLS TO HOLD SKI MEET AT ST. SAUVEUR

A Girls' Ski Meet is being planned for the Monday of the Short Recess. It will be held at St. Sauveur, and promises to be a good way of finishing up the holiday. This is the big event of the season for the ski enthusiasts, and as the course will not be too difficult everyone should turn out and make the day a success. Watch the notice board for further details.

FROSH SLEIGH DRIVE

On Tuesday night the Freshettes and Freshmen held a most successful sleigh drive. The sleigh left the college at 7.30 p.m., and proceeded into the local countryside. The clear night aided the spirits of the gay crowd, but the cold turned them back to the "Cosy," where dancing and refreshments ended a very enjoyable evening.

the announcement of the coming Student Society Meeting.

"The Executive of the Social Problems Club wishes to announce that the political symposium will continue whether Mr. Tim Buck speaks or not. The opinion of the Club on the Tim Buck meeting will be discussed in further detail at the regular meeting of the Club this afternoon at 5.

"The Executive believes that the Students' Council has taken the proper course in registering its opposition to the Padlock Law. We believe that this action is in accordance with the position of McGill as a centre of free thought and investigation.

"The Social Problems Club, while holding to no one political platform, allow Mr. Buck's platform to be presented through its columns. The Social Problems Club, while holding to no one political platform, except that of democracy itself, will continue to fight for the right of man to freedom of thought, speech, assembly and conscience. We will continue to fight the Padlock Law until that law is repealed or otherwise made invalid."

week in Carnegie Steel alone. Mentioning a few statistics, Diesendorf said that enrolment had increased from 8,000 to 45,000 in the steel industry, and from 30,000 to 100,000 in radio since the advent of the C.I.O.; moreover, 400 contracts had been made between the C.I.O. and steel and textile executives in 1937 alone. "The C.I.O.," he concluded, "was organized for the purpose of improving the hours, wages and working conditions of the labourers; this is what it has done, and it is by no means detrimental to the best interests of labour."

Neville Wykes, following up the argument of his colleague, believed that the C.I.O. is detrimental to labour because it has failed to maintain the sympathy of the middle classes. Commenting on the sit-down strikes, he said that the Committee used this all-powerful weapon too often, thus weakening the effect of it when it became "as plentiful as mosquitoes in August." The middle and upper classes disliked the activities of the C.I.O. when, owing to a strike, they were forced to climb fifteen flights of stairs because an elevator strike was in progress. Moreover, the C.I.O. has been accused of having

STUDENT SUPPORT NEEDED.

Since 80 per cent. of the Members of Parliament are in favour of the Bill, it only remains for Mr. Martin to gain support, from college students, student councils, teachers, youth councils, the N.F.C.U.S., and the C.U.P. Already Mr. Martin has received 32,000 letters of congratulation and support, and has made about 60 speeches across the country to publish his scheme.

Under the aegis of the C.S.A., a national student campaign is to be established, with committees on each campus to ascertain the number of scholarships and other financial gifts already offered on each campus, how many students work during the summer to pay part of their educational expenses, the number that are unable to graduate through financial inability, how many would study in graduate schools if they had sufficient funds, and the number of scholarships needed. The average scholarship in Canada today is worth approximately $200 per annum.

C.S.A. EXPLAINED.

of Medicine. After Medicine comes the Faculty of Arts and then Graduate Studies. As a matter of fact 42 per cent. of all the students, British and non-British, are from the United States.

POLITICAL CONDITIONS.

Political conditions have never been very good. In the early days, the skipper of the first fishing boat to get to the island in the spring became governor for the year. That was a great race for political power. Then came the fight for self-government which was gained through threats of violence. At present there is a commission government. There are some who would regard this as Fascistic dictatorship. To others labour organization in the fishing industry smacks of communism. If a man wishes to take an active part in the affairs of the country he must be prepared to receive scathing personal attacks. However, if he persists, he may accomplish much.

Dr. Hatcher's talk was followed by refreshments and a sing-song. It was announced that the club's annual banquet would be held about the second week of March.

at 10 p.m. Simpson needs no introduction to McGill and Montreal society for whom he has been a popular maestro for several years. The law school can point with pardonable pride to "Colonel" Simpson who has been prominent in things musical at McGill since his undergraduate days and the prognosis is that he and his collegiate crew are prepared to outdo all previous attempts on this big occasion.

The committee has been fortunate in securing the renowned Royal Sorenaders under the leadership of Jack Messacar, and these gifted lads will be holding forth in the Main Dining Room with an interesting programme of swing and song. Through the kindness of the New Carlton Club where Messacar and his group are regularly engaged it was possible to obtain them for this evening and a genuine treat is thus added to the evening programme.

All roads lead to the Mount Royal Hotel this evening and for a few hours the notorious medical "shop talk" will be forgotten for the charms of "morphological fluidity" and a generous good time is assured. We'll see you at the Med Ball.

goals around the circuit with whom they may come into contact. Herb Owen is still with the squad, and looks like a promising addition; Coach Farquharson has been working him easily, gradually fitting him for a regular position on next year's edition.

The U. of M. boys have only won one game in the International circuit, and so are definitely out of the running for this season. For this reason they should be feared, because, as pointed out before, they will be working hard to upset McGill and the dope as a finale to the season.

have a good time. We know you'll do your best.

The R.V.C. hockey team meet the Bishop girls on Saturday night at the Coliseum at 7 o'clock. Under the able coaching of Paul Pidcock—another Engineer—the girls have worked up a smart brand of hockey and they should have no difficulty in downing the visitors.

But we believe that Saturday's game will really show the Engineers the stuff the girls have and prepare them in a measure for the opposition the girls will put up when they meet the Engineers in their game scheduled for Monday night. And there not serving actual beans—that was just a figure of speech to assure you of some nourishment after the game.

COME AND GET IT

In the Mock Parliament sponsored by the Political Economy Club on Wednesday, February 23rd, the Conservative Party will play one of the leading roles. In order to do this it is essential that there be some organization. To this end all members of the party and students interested in the Party are invited to attend a meeting in Room 34 of the Arts Building at two-thirty p.m. on Monday, February 21st.

The Party feels that it can offer an attractive alternative to Fascism and Laissez-faire Liberalism. There is a place for the Conservative Party with a new policy of Reform in the fight against the forces of reaction. Socialism is the other alternative. The ends we seek are much the same; the methods of attaining them are quite different!

The Party platform will be the subject of discussion. Will you assist us in an attempt to make our present system of Government capable of keeping step with the times? It can be done, with your support! Let us see you on Monday!
